Studer Covenant Alliance End-of-Life Institute huge success

Pensacola, FL – Nearly 190 attendees representing 61 organizations attended the intensive two-day Studer Covenant Alliance Excellence in End-of-Life Care Institute held in Las Vegas Sept. 17-18. In this seminar, Quint Studer and the Alliance team shared how they have hardwired excellence in end-of-life care organizations around the country.

Attendees learned prescriptive tools, tactics and strategies to ensure hospice and palliative care organizations, home health organizations, nursing facilities, and assisted living facilities are great places for employees to work, physicians to entrust the care of their patients, and for patients and families to receive the very best care to be offered. The next Excellence in End-of-Life Care Institute will be held March 4-5, 2008 in Pensacola Beach, Florida.

The Studer Covenant Alliance provides organizational coaching, project development for hospice and palliative care units, and educational institutes to help organizations in the post-acute continuum of care. The organizational coaching is a partnership approach helping hospice organizations achieve outcomes that ultimately ensure what happens by the bedside with patients and families is the best care possible. The Institutes are intensive two-day sessions taking leaders into the prescriptive behaviors that help organizations achieve those outcomes.
